A BRAINY CHOICE

EXCELLENT HIGHER EDUCATION IN BELGIUM

FRENCH-SPEAKING

In French-speaking Belgium, the education system is varied, diversified and accessible. Universities, university colleges and schools of arts; from bachelor level through to PhD, each and every student are sure to find the right education for their plans.

KEY INFORMATION FOR SETTING UP COLLABORATIONS WITH OUR HIGHER EDUCATION INSTITUTIONS

Belgian qualifications recognised worldwide

In French-speaking Belgium, higher education is based on a system of three cycles of studies: the bachelor's degree, the master's degree and the PhD. Each qualification obtained gives you ECTS credits, which are recognised in numerous countries in both the European Union and worldwide. As an adhering member of this system, the Wallonia-Brussels Federation is committed to guaranteeing the quality of higher education, promoting student mobility and strengthening the globalisation of its higher education.

How higher education works

The award of the qualifications (bachelor's degree, master's degree and PhD) is linked to the number of years of studies completed since entering higher education. Each year can award up to 60 ECTS credits (European Credits Transfer System), which can be used and transferred from one country to another.

- A 1st cycle qualification (bachelor's degree) represents 180 or 240 ECTS credits, namely 3 to 4 years of study.
- A 2nd cycle qualification (master's degree) represents 60 or 180 ECTS credits, namely 1 to 3 years of study.
- A 3rd cycle qualification (PhD) represents a variable number of ECTS.

Academic calendar

As a rule, the calendar of an academic year in French-speaking Belgium is divided up into three terms, each lasting approximately four months. Learning is split over the first two terms, except for certain assessments or professional integration activities.

UNIVERSITIES IN FRENCH- SPEAKING BELGIUM

Theoretical and scientific education

Spread throughout the Wallonia-Brussels Federation territory, the French-speaking universities of Belgium offer their students quality education. The options are divided up into four fields of study: science and technology, human sciences, health sciences and art.

Research at the heart of the French-speaking Belgian university course

In addition to in-depth knowledge of the chosen subject, the Wallonian and Brussels based universities offer a solid general education, encouraging their students to take a scientific approach. This is why the focus is firmly on research, both basic and applied. And it is this philosophy that makes the universities of French-speaking Belgium institutions that are famous for the excellence of their research programmes and have earned them a remarkable reputation both in our country and beyond. As indeed is proven by the numerous Nobel prize winners who have come out of our institutions: 4 Nobel prize-winners for medicine, 3 for peace, 1 for literature, 1 for chemistry and 1 for physics!

How are university studies organised?

The universities offer long-term education programmes made up of two cycles:

- a 1st cycle (180 ECTS credits) that takes the students up to “transitional” bachelor’s degree level, i.e. its main aim is to prepare for the master degree that follows;
- a 2nd cycle, leading to a master degree (120 to 180 ECTS credits).

These two cycles can be followed by a 3rd, a PhD.

ULB, a free spirit since 1834!

At the heart of Europe and Belgium.

Brussels offers all the advantages of a capital and the quality of life of a buzzing city offering plenty of entertainment. ULB has three campuses and two sites in Brussels, as well as two campuses in Charleroi.

Striving for excellence.

More than 3,600 researchers and 2,000 PhD students, spread throughout our 200 research centres and 9 interdisciplinary institutions, contribute each day towards increasing our knowledge and promoting the expertise of the ULB.

Open to the world.

More than a third of our students and researchers come from abroad (140 different nationalities) and our dynamic international approach has resulted in our 450 active partnerships in place with some of the world's very best universities, as well as close collaboration with numerous universities in the south.

Committed since 1834.

Based on the principle of free enquiry that postulates independent reasoning and the rejection of all dogma, the University has stayed true to its original ideals: an institution free from all supervision, committed to protecting democratic and humanistic values.

State-of-the-art education, for everyone.

In our 12 faculties, schools and training institutes in all disciplines and almost 40 different Bachelor's programmes, 150 Masters, 5 Erasmus Mundus joint Master's programmes and more than 65 Specialized Master's courses.

UMONS was created in 2009 following a merger between the Université de Mons-Hainaut and the Faculty of Engineering of Mons, the university's oldest faculty.

UMONS is one of the founding members of the Pôle hainuyer, one of the five academic clusters instituted in the Wallonia-Brussels Federation under the scope of the restructuring of higher education. It assumes the co-presidency of this cluster, which groups together 3 universities, 3 university colleges, 3 schools of arts and 26 continuing education institutions, and offers nearly 600 courses in 21 fields of education to more than 30,000 students in the province of Hainaut.

With more than 900 researchers, research objectives in UMONS are pursued both regionally and internationally. The common goal of all UMONS researchers is to develop expertise on a large scale, subsequently benefiting society, particularly the region.

Accommodating students in a learning environment suited to the individual is a priority of UMONS. Through the education on offer at UMONS, we promote critical thinking, open-mindedness, tolerance, responsibility, and autonomy, and develop students' and researchers' intellectual, cultural and human experiences in order for them to become responsible members of society.

Founded in 1831 by the Society of Jesus, the University of Namur perpetuates in education and research the values of humanist tradition: universality, liberty, quality, ethics and solidarity. It has chosen to prioritise training students and researchers to become responsible players in society.

Through its international network, UNamur offers its students, in 3 cycles, the chance to gain international experience through study trips, through traineeships either with partner laboratories or with international companies.

Located in the French-speaking part of Belgium, right in the heart of Europe, the University of Namur hosts about 6,500 students and has 6 faculties offering more than 70 courses. The University is also active in the field of research, since its 11 interdisciplinary institutes are concerned with areas such as the ethics of nanotechnologies, linguistics, IT, human rights, veterinary science, social sciences and others.

Quality of teaching and research have led UNamur to develop co-operation schemes and exchanges which benefit students, researchers and tutors alike.

In total, the University offers 12 different Bachelor's degree programmes, 1 Bachelor's degree programme delivered entirely in English, 8 Master's degree and advanced Master's degree programmes, 8 PhD programmes and 15 ongoing training programmes.

The undergraduate law programmes are also available in a multilingual version (French-Dutch, French-English and French-Dutch-English). Those in Economic, Social, Political and Communication Sciences are available in a bilingual (French-English) and a trilingual (adding Dutch) version. Full-English programmes exist for the Master's in European Studies (run jointly with UCLouvain) and for the Bachelor's in Business Engineering (run jointly with KU Leuven).

UNIVERSITY COLLEGES IN FRENCH-SPEAKING BELGIUM

Practical, professional education

All the French-speaking university colleges of Belgium offer a quality education, liaising closely with applied research, universities, and socio-professional environments. Differently to the universities, the teaching employed in the university colleges is hinged on learning and the world of work. The theoretical and conceptual aspects are all part of the programme with a heavy focus on internships, which are mandatory.

How are university colleges studies organised?

- Studies organised as a single cycle, leading to a professional-type bachelor's degree (180 - 240 ECTS credits).
- Studies organised into two cycles, leading to a transitional bachelor's degree (1st cycle - 180 ECTS credits) and master (2nd cycle - 60 to 120 ECTS credits).
- Studies organised into one or two cycles, leading to an advanced bachelor's degree. This can be obtained after having successfully completed an initial bachelor's or master's degree. The specialised bachelor's degree contains at least 60 ECTS credits.

EPHEC University College proposes a wide range of business (Accounting, Law, E-Business, Marketing, International Trade) and technical Bachelor's degrees (Automation, Electro mechanics, ICT), granting access to skilled jobs in growth promising sectors or to a post-graduate programme. Since 2019, we have also organised an advanced Bachelor's degree in Business Data Analysis.

EPHEC University College has been aiming for 50 years to develop not only the students' technical skills but also their strong soft skills—creativity—cooperation—active listening—problem solving—decision-making—etc., in order to ensure lifelong employability. We are deeply convinced that the perfect mix of both skills will enable each student to develop his/her personal projects, at a local or international level, and will help build a more sustainable world. Our Academic Institution wants to promote the development of individuals and society while being recognised for the expertise of our staff in the education and professional training of citizens who can play an active and enterprising role in society, upon starting and throughout their careers, at a local and at an international level.

Our pillars:

- A hands-on pedagogical approach.
- In our pedagogical approach, a thorough understanding of theoretical principles is blended with innovation, in a hands-on practical education, thanks to small classes.
- Collaboration, practice, professionalism and entrepreneurship are the essence.

Strong links with the professional world:

EPHEC has strong relationships with leading companies (profit & non-profit) and work integrated learning is part of every degree offered. Students are experienced in their fields before they graduate.

Globalisation:

Our aim is to develop international skills for all our students. Internationalisation at Home (I@H), short international programmes, and virtual projects are developed with the help of a large network of international partners.

Research and development:

EPHEC aims to conduct research which is closely linked to our teaching areas. We seek collaboration and co-creation with our local and international public and professional partners from business and government.

With its 4 campuses located in the heart of Brussels, the University College ICHEC-ECAM-ISFSC offers 26 courses in fields such as economic and management science, engineering science and technology, information and communications and social and political science. It also operates in research, continuous training and entrepreneurship.

International scope

The University College welcomes more than 4,300 students of more than 60 different nationalities each year. The group's international scope is one of its academic pillars and it offers students many opportunities for training in French or English or on French/English bilingual courses. These include, for example, the 'Master's degree in Management Sciences' and the 'Master's degree in Business Management'.

Its students also have the possibility to engage in many inter-university exchange programmes due to more than 213 bilateral agreements signed with its partners in Europe and worldwide.

Academic excellence

ICHEC is accredited with the prestigious AACSB quality label which certifies the institution's value on the national and global stage. Its joint diploma in finance co-awarded by the Louvain School of Management is recognised by the CFA (Chartered Financial Analyst) Program.

ICHEC is the first French-speaking Belgian member of the CLADEA network, a prestigious global management school network based in Latin America.

ECAM's 6 engineering courses are accredited by the CTI (Commission des Titres d'Ingénieur) engineering degree commission.

Business experience

Its educational mission is anchored in a balanced combination of theory and practice. With close and solid ties to the business world, the institutions offer their students professional immersion (internships, business projects, etc.) that is unique in Belgium and abroad, throughout their academic career.

Innovative teaching

Thanks to their human size, ICHEC, ECAM and ISFSC guarantee all their students continuous and personalised supervision. Their teaching methods are flexible, innovative and constantly being adapted to the changes affecting the fields taught.

HEH.be provides Bachelor's and Master's degrees organised by Wallonia-Brussels Federation.

Since 1996, the year of its creation, Haute École en Hainaut (HEH.be University College) has always met the challenge of offering a quality education provided by well-motivated teachers and promoting student success thanks to an individualised support throughout their training.

To achieve its goals, HEH.be offers its more than three thousand students a range of thirty-one Bachelor's and Master's study programmes spread across four departments in Mons and Tournai. Furthermore, the institution is also committed to providing inclusive higher education.

Since 7 November 2013 and the adoption of the decree redefining the landscape of higher education, HEH.be has been part of the Pôle hainuyer academic centre, the higher education hub in the province of Hainaut, and works together with the other higher education partner institutions of Hainaut to fulfil its tasks of teaching, research and services to society.

Aware of the importance of international openness, HEH.be signed the Erasmus Charter for Higher Education 2014-2020 and is a beneficiary of the Erasmus+ European mobility programme. It can thus provide mobility grants to its students so that they can carry out an internship or part of their studies abroad.

The Haute École Lucia de Brouckère (HELdB), located in Brussels and in the Walloon Brabant, offers a wide range of three-year (Bachelor's degree) and five-year (Master's degree) trainings.

It organises approximately 15 different programmes, gathered in 5 categories: agronomic, economic, paramedical, educational and technical.

The university college combines the theoretical and practical aspects thanks to training in the field, conferences, study stays... Split into small groups, the students benefit from the experience and knowledge of their teachers, often coming from the professional world.

The university college is also open on the world. Not only is its student population extremely multicultural, the institution also encourages international exchanges—both traineeships and Erasmus stays—and collaborates with research centres to ensure high quality teaching.

For every project, for every talent

The Haute École de Namur-Liège-Luxembourg (Hénallux) numbers more than 6,500 students spread across ten campuses, in the Provinces of Namur, Liège and Luxembourg. It offers a vast range of training in higher education, at Bachelor's and Master's levels, several one-year specialisation programmes and a large number of in-service training sessions. It is part of two academic hubs: the Namur Hub and the Liège-Luxembourg Hub.

High values

The Hénallux organises local training with an international flavour, staying one step ahead of the evolution of society's needs and contexts, taking a supportive, sustainable development approach. It helps each student develop their skills, independence and responsibilities to help them bloom personally and professionally. The values of responsibility, agility, solidarity, kindness and open-mindedness underpin the daily actions of everyone at Hénallux.

If you fancy studying at Hénallux, don't hesitate to go further in your search for information: meet students and teachers, particularly during the Open House Days, the Open Courses and Information Evenings.

Choosing the Haute École de la Province de Namur means choosing a university college on a human scale. We help students develop skills and build a professional project, offering the support of a teaching and administrative team and listening to individual needs. Learning is taken into account in both its individual and collective dimensions.

On the strength of the skills and experience of our teaching staff and training coordinators, our courses are perfectly in line with the professional world.

With 8 different Bachelor's degree courses and 4 specialisations, we train for the professions of today's society. They also guarantee a high degree of employability, as they are situated either in meaningful new, innovative sectors, or in sectors in which demand is constant. We are actively involved in economic and managerial sciences, public health sciences and motor sciences, as well as agronomic sciences and biological engineering.

Through the courses, activities and events we organise, we encourage an interdisciplinary approach and strive to have the different Bachelor's degrees and specialisations come together around common themes. We are firmly convinced that it is essential to foster interdisciplinary thinking, filled with different knowledge and skills.

We do everything we can to make the student the real protagonist of their training, providing all the tools necessary to meet the expectations of future employers or to ensure that they can embark on everything they dream of, pursuing ambitions and developing creativity and knowledge.

Founded in 1832, the Royal Conservatoire of Brussels is an Arts College run by the Federation Wallonia-Brussels. It is one of the oldest institutions for arts education in Belgium. While building on its prestigious past, the current work of the Conservatoire looks to the future, with a focus on delivering high quality education. We constantly strive to develop excellent methods of teaching to ensure that every student, whether musician or actor, can find themselves as an artist and follow their chosen path.

The tradition of the Conservatoire Royal de Bruxelles is maintained by a faculty of the highest quality both in terms of teaching skills and as performers in their own right.

The teaching methods have continually evolved in order to help our student musicians and actors fully develop their potential and find their own, individual, artistic pathway. In particular, teaching has been reformed and new courses introduced in line with the changing requirements of artistic and professional life. To this end, new departments have been created, such as the Jazz department, the Early Music department, or, more recently, the department of Pedagogy and the department of Rhythms and rhythmic.

Today, the Conservatoire Royal de Bruxelles has just over 650 students who come from five continents - 75% from outside Belgium - and they are taught by around 230 teachers. The courses are offered at university level, and are organised and recognised by the Federation Wallonia-Brussels, and equip graduates of the Conservatoire with excellent professional perspectives.

The Royal Conservatoire of Liège is a Federation Wallonia-Brussels School of Arts which offers high level artistic training (Bachelor's, Master's and Teaching Diplomas) in the field of music and theatre.

Founded in 1827, it is one of Europe's oldest conservatoires, offering a professionally-orientated music course.

Hosting about thirty students at the time it was created, the Conservatoire's population saw a rapid increase in the XIXth century. At the time, the school trained some notable musicians, including César Franck, Eugène Ysaÿe and Henri Vieuxtemps. The Royal Conservatoire of Liège has steadily worked on its structure and developed over the course of the XXth century. In 1930, the school's Theatre section was created. Since the 1970s, especially on the initiative of Henri Pousseur, the school has become a wonderful place for contemporary creation, in music and theatre alike. An artistic institution of international renown, it now hosts more than 350 students and has about one hundred tutors.

Since 2014, Nathanaël Harcq has been the Director of the Royal Conservatoire of Liège (in charge of training actors). A new Director in the field of Music will be appointed soon.

ESA Saint-Luc* seeks to provide both consistent and demanding training to creators overseen by theoreticians, researchers and tutors in the artistic fields taught.

Combining education and training in creation, the ESA Saint-Luc in Brussels offers teaching and research programmes focussing on the fields of design, living and interior furnishings, eco-design, innovation policies and even new methods of graphic and visual communication and contemporary narration, including digital. Our programmes incite both practice and reflection, with the aim of giving students a solid general culture as well as the critical tools necessary for practising their discipline.

The ESA Saint-Luc is a school that does not shy away from work and requirement, but nor is it closed to pleasure. It is a school that encourages students to spread their wings, yet will not lie to them about their future destiny or lure them into art, assuming its role as maker of autonomy and production. It is more than aware of its responsibility for training students for their future professions.

Our aim is to train responsible practitioners competent in their field, to introduce them to the particular role of creators, to open up their minds to the quality of the profession and more broadly, to raise their awareness of the society in which they will be led to operate.

*The École Saint-Luc is a School of Arts which belongs to the fully-fledged subsidised free system (Federation Wallonia-Brussels). It is one of the 4 Schools which belongs to the ASBL Comité organisateur des Instituts Saint-Luc in Saint-Gilles.

The IAD also offers continuous training on radio animation and musical production – artist management.

Established in 1959, a year after the universal exhibition of Brussels, the IAD has trained more than 2,000 professionals who today hold a place in the Belgian, European and international audiovisual and theatre world. IAD aims to train professional artists who combine creativity, artistic sensitivity, technical Mastery and communication skills.

The learning and working method privileged at the IAD is to work as part of an interdisciplinary team, employing creativity, technical skills and professional reflexes, at the heart of project-based teaching and student training.

In addition to these professional skills, the tradition pursued by the IAD is to open up its students, whatever their origin, to the world surrounding them and to convey values of respect, tolerance and open-mindedness. In a constantly changing world, it is essential to discourage all forms of waste and to foster the training of curious, generous, open young artists.

The INSAS is a school of arts (ESA) of the Wallonia-Brussels Federation network established in 1962, based in Brussels and which teaches performing arts (audiovisual and theatre). Teaching has always been based on the principle that professionals need to be trained in all areas, but also that learning performing arts is hinged on the principle of a complementary nature.

Teaching is delivered by professionals operating in the creative domain, who convey their knowledge ensuring that technical areas are kept constantly up-to-date and critical reflection is guaranteed on technical and conceptual evolution.

The cinema options run by INSAS include one longer-term and three short-term technical options (image, sound, editing/script). In the theatre options, there is a long-term dramatic interpretation option and a long-term stage technique and staging option.

Taking a common approach to artistic work, INSAS privileges learning instrumental practices and reflecting as part of a team. Classes have no more than fifteen students, making teaching based on a direct, often individual relationship between the professor and the student.

Established in 1970, the IMEP (Institut Supérieur de Musique et de Pédagogie) is a place of creativity and freedom hinged on a long tradition of teaching. The teaching offered is multidisciplinary and based on research, creation and opening up to the world of arts, people and society: it offers higher education, training for artists, educators and social players, adjusted to the realities of contemporary society.

The institute assigns a special place to research in musical teaching and posturology. The teaching body of the IMEP consists of recognised artists-actors, composers and teachers. A total of 471 students are enrolled at the IMEP, of whom approximately 28% are of foreign origin.

The IMEP offers three-year training courses (Bachelor's degree) in music teaching and five-year options (Master's) in instruments, singing, musical computing, music theory and writing. The IMEP also delivers higher education teaching qualifications in one year, completing the Master's degree.

The school also welcomes young talents, who are waiting to achieve the diploma required to embark on higher musical studies full-time. Each year, a season of concerts, conferences, masterclasses and musical meets is organised. This allows students to attend and take part in the performances and assure visibility to the teaching projects beyond and outside the school.

Wallonia-Brussels International

Wallonia-Brussels International (WBI) is the body responsible for Wallonia and Brussels international relations, i.e. the Ministry of Foreign Affairs of Wallonia-Brussels.

Under agreements with 70 countries and regions but also in its position within multilateral fora, WBI's mission is to increase the impact, influence and reputation of the Wallonia-Brussels area and of its representatives (higher education institutions, researchers, students, entrepreneurs, creators, artists, etc.).

In practice, WBI's mission takes the form of five activities:

- Diplomatic representation
- Support for project development
- Promotion
- Networking
- Advice and strategic monitoring

WBI operates through a network of General Delegations with diplomatic status. The network abroad also includes sectoral networks: Academic and Cultural Liaison Officers, and Scientific Liaison Officers.

OUR MAIN INSTITUTIONAL PARTNERS

In order to ensure the globalisation of French-speaking Belgian higher education, and as an agency of Wallonia-Brussels International (WBI) in charge of its promotion, Wallonie-Bruxelles Campus works closely with the external network of WBI as well as with the Academy for Research and Higher Education. Wallonie-Bruxelles Campus also collaborates on a regular basis with: the Ministry of the Wallonia-Brussels Federation, AEF Europe and the National Fund for Scientific Research (FNRS).

→ The Ministry of the Wallonia-Brussels Federation has the mission of implementing, after obtaining parliamentary approval, the policy adopted by the Wallonia-Brussels Federation government. <http://www.federation-wallonie-bruxelles.be/>

→ The Academy For Research and Higher Education is the federation of French-speaking higher education institutions of Belgium. Its role is to ensure the global coordination of their activities and foster their development and collaboration. <https://www.ares-ac.be/>

→ AEF Europe is the French-speaking agency promoting lifelong education and training. It is in charge of the education and training part of the Erasmus+ programme. This Agency is in charge of promoting, implementing and managing the various programmes assigned it, in compliance with the European objectives. <http://www.erasmusplus-fr.be/>

→ The National Fund for Scientific Research – FNRS seeks to develop basic scientific research under the scope of the initiatives presented by researchers. It fosters the production and development of knowledge, supporting, on the one hand, researchers individually and, on the other, financing research programmes pursued in the laboratories and services mainly situated in the universities of the Wallonia-Brussels Federation. <https://www.frs-fnrs.be/en/>
